United States Ergonomics Certifies Remedy Interactive's Injury Prevention Software

LAS VEGAS, NV - November 27, 2006 - Remedy Interactive's OES is First Software Program to Receive Certification

National Ergonomics Conference & Expo (NECE) 2006 — Remedy Interactive, Inc., a leading provider of enterprise solutions that help Global 1000 companies reduce their workers' compensation costs, today announced that United States Ergonomics has awarded Ergonomic Certification to Remedy Interactive's OES. The OES is a flexible web-based solution that helps risk managers and health and safety directors in office and non-office work environments use business process automation to create efficiencies and drive injury prevention program effectiveness. Remedy Interactive is the first injury prevention software provider to receive this Ergonomic Certification.

In determining whether Remedy Interactive met the requirements for the Certification, United States Ergonomics assessed the degree to which the OES enabled established best practices, as determined through published guidelines and applicable ergonomics standards. In addition, a Certified Professional Ergonomist (CPE) assessed the OES by interviewing many customers, reviewing published case study information and evaluating the OES's content and functionality in a test laboratory.

All the customers interviewed said the OES was considered an integral part of their ergonomics processes. A large government contractor said "We use the system [OES] to leverage our staff and focus our efforts. There are a large percentage of people that have lowered their risks by implementing changes offered by the OES." In Remedy Interactive's own measurement studies, the OES has been proven to help organizations reduce workers' claims costs by up to 40%.

"We are very impressed with this product's capabilities and performance. The OES has directly contributed to measurable reductions in ergonomics risks and injuries and has allowed companies to leverage their resources dramatically. The product adheres to ergonomics best practices and makes great business sense," said Kevin Costello, President of United States Ergonomics.

"The automation of injury prevention business processes significantly increases companies' abilities to reduce workers' compensation risk and costs,” said Kim Lopez, CEO of Remedy Interactive. “As the global business environment becomes increasingly competitive, an organization’s business success depends on its ability to achieve efficiencies in managing risk reduction. The Ergonomic Certification validates that companies who integrate the OES into their business processes, can significantly reduce their risk of corporate injury.”
